HER TERRIBLE DREAM.

Smitten with Melancholy Because she had Rejected her Lover—Then Suicide.

It is only a few days since the village of Lyons, N. Y., was thrilled by the double tragedy in which Miss Frances Howey killed her father and then herself. It was said, that her mind became unstrung by the recent death of her lover, Eugene Raines of Rochester. It is now understood that she rejected his suit, after which he went South for his health, but died. Miss Howey considered herself the cause of his death, and was forever haunted by that reflection. A short time ago she related to her pastor that she had a dream, in which, standing by a dark and rushing stream, she saw a boat with a single occupant whirled helplessly down, until it balanced on the brink of a cataract. It hapless passenger flung his arms wildly, and begged for rescue, and at the last moment turned upon her, revealing the face of her dead lover. This was never effaced from her mind, and she rapidly grew melancholy, until she took her life.

Hunting Stray Freight Cars.

One week finds the Lost Car Agent hunting cars in Florida, and the next may discover him in Maine. The rules governing the "business" are that he must travel by daylight, ride in the rear coach and keep his eye peeled. Frequently while sailing past a side track full of cars he discovers ones longing to his own company, and by practice he becomes so sharp-eyed that he can photograph the number of that car on his mind, in an instant. Arriving at a telegraph station, he politely requests the officials of the road to send home his company's car. Cars are frequently sent from one end of the continent to the other, and sent back empty. In case a road be short of cars, they sometimes take the liberty to retain and use them, and sometimes a dishonest road will steal them outright, and obliterate the owner's mark and number. The Lost Car Agent, for a Western road, recently, after searching two months for a car, found it away out on the plains, forty rods from the railroad, devoid of its trucks, and occupied by an ambitious squatter as a residence. One of our Cincinnati railroad companies are looking for two of their freight cars which have been missing for three years. They traced them to a point on a connecting line, and there they must have been swallowed up by an earthquake, so effectually have they disappeared.

Not Much for a Minister Now-a-Days.

From the New York Times.

If Mr. Lane is convicted he will be ejected from preaching, and in all probability deposed from the ministry. The majority of the church are believed to be in his favor, and his friends confidently predict his acquittal. A venerable member said last night: "That committee can never convict our Dominic, and I'm betting on it. At the worst, all he's done is to kiss and hug a few women folks, and that ain't much for a minister to do nowadays."

"Now then, who is the plaintiff in this case?" asked his honor, as no case was called. "I don't know anything about plaintiffs," replied a man who slowly rose, "but if you are speaking for the chap who was chased a mile and a half and then mopped all over his own barnyard by two desperados, I'm your man." The case went on.

It is not an unusual thing for sparks from locomotives to start fires, but it is not often that such a spark costs the company owning the locomotive $100,000. A verdict for this amount was, however, returned by a Toronto jury against the "Canada Central railroad, in behalf of a burned out lumber dealer."

MONTGOMERY, JANUARY 26, 1860

THE CALIFORNIA FOR FEB.

The California for February is a magazine of great interest, especially to dwellers on the Pacific Coast. The continuation of "Garry Sand" comes into competition. J. W. Gates contributes a valuable paper on "Washington Territory" and Josephine Clifford's description of "How Grapes Grow in California" will open the year. "Life in the Eastern States" where heliotropes are not found climbing all over the side of a house. R. E. Robinson's paper on "Peculiar Treasures" is an important contribution to the archaeology of America, describing how the Indians make arrow and spear heads out of obsidian and jasper, and explaining how deposits of obsidian naked probably occur. "Kit" Bishop has two poems of merit, and T. H. Hittell contributes a interesting account of "The Seven Cities of Cibola." "A Platte River Chat" will interest literary people, and "The Solid South and the Bloody Shirt" is a very able political paper. "A Clerical Scrap" by Margaret Collier Graham, has the grace of style of William Black. "Oh with the Dance" by "Dashi" is exceedingly bright and witty. "The sense of dancing, and if not written by Bierce of the Arroway, would do him no discredit. "In the Lava Beds" is a graphic description of the battle-fields of the Modoc War. J. V. Cheney's eulogy on "Isolated Poets" Percival and Neal" might well have been omitted. "Hoodlums on Hop Ranch" is a good sketch of a certain phase of life in California. Edgar Fawcett's poem on "Arts Ideals" is musical and expressed in "fall" language, though its meaning may not be exactly clear, if indeed, it means anything.

NEVADA SCHOOL LAND.

A dispatch from Washington states that Representative Daggett is preparing a bill to provide for the relinquishment to the General Government of all unsold sixteen and thirty-sixth sections of land heretofore granted to Nevada for school purposes, and for a grant in lieu thereof of 2,000,000 acres of non-mineral lands, to be selected by the state in tracts of any size from the unoccupied land within her borders.

The lands heretofore granted aggregate between 3,500,000 and 4,000,

000 acres, but owing to their mountainous situation or desert character about 100,000 acres have yet been sold, and consequently the school fund has received scarcely any benefit from the grant. It is believed, however, that if the state be allowed to take up sagebrush lands in large tracts

they can be sold to good advantage to parties who will undertake to utilize them by irrigation, but who would not incur the expense and risk of atttempting to bring water upon the widely separated small tracts. The Nevada Legislature passed a bill authorizing this proposed exchange to be made whenever Congress agrees to

it. The Commissioner of the General

Land office has expressed himself in favor of the proposition, and will recommend the passage of Daggett's bill.

OUR TEAM GROUND.

We call the attention of our readers to the facts in regard to Slade, the Spiritualist, which we publish in another column. The men upon whom we depend are reliable and unknown. Ouster is the conductor between Carson and Virginia, the others live in Carson. A GAZETTE reporter spent yesterday in connection with them, and there is no rumor or hearsay in the report. Everything is from their own evidence, and was put in writing on the spot. Any man who is capable of trifling with the feelings of poor suffering ones, who are mourning for dead friends, as this man thought he was doing with King, deserves to be turned and feathered. As soon as one of this class of frauds finds that some one has lost a relative, a little child or a parent in the dead, they bring them to the public, and work upon the feelings of the heart broken mother, and nine times out of ten, if they have ordinary tact, she thinks she feels the little arms around her neck and the little lips upon her cheek. We hope our brothers of the press will do justice to this man and protect their readers from his raids upon their purses.

Prof. Stewart remains in Maine and presents a spring mining excitement.

A LOAD ON THE STATE.

The shortsighted policy pursued by the Miners' Union in Storey County is doing not only its own members but the country and the whole state almost immeasurable harm. There are millions upon millions of treasure in sight in the vast chambers of the Comstock lode, but at the high rate of wages it cannot be taken out and worked at any profit. The Union does not allow a man to work in a mine for less than four dollars a day, and in the lower levels the temperature is so high that a man cannot do more than four good hours work in a day, if he can that. Not an apprentice is allowed, not a boy to carry candle or ice water. The miners will let their sons grow up hoodlums and criminals rather than allow them to be hired at cheap rates to do light work, such as children do in mines in other countries. The bonanza kings are bound hand and foot. If they dared to do it, who is not a member of the Union, every man on the Comstock would stop work in an hour and the effect would be more disastrous to the country than was the Chicago or Boston fires.

The mines would soon be flooded with water; timber would be crushed, shafts and drifts would fill up with rock and dirt, and when other men came to work there would be bloodshed. The Union men would fight a hard battle with its three thousand stalwart members, to say nothing of six hundred Mechanics Union men, and the many allies that would be drawn to that side. Before an adequate force could be gotten to work, the Comstock lode would not be worth the trouble of cleaning out.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Tom Clarke told a Carson Appeal reporter on Saturday that he had worn out no complaint against the men who assaulted him in Virginia, and that he meant to let the matter drop. Huff, the man who was stabbed while defending Clarke, says that he knows one of the fellows very well by sight, and pointed him out to a policeman in Virginia since the assault, but no arrest has been made. It looks bad for Virginia that on the open street, in broad daylight, a deliberate attempt at assassination was made on an honest man, and the would-be-murderers left unpunished. At the same time, if the victim of the attack himself refuses to lodge a complaint with the authorities, they should hardly be blamed for the escape of the guilty parties.

The New York Nation, having no vacancy on its staff, could not avail itself of the following opportunity, but commands it to esteemed contemporaries: "I write asking for a situation; or as Correspondent or Writer for the paper: I have been for 15 yrs practising and preparing myself for an Author and writer, (5 yrs devoting my whole time to this) and now feel it to be time for to make practical use of it; having written and collected 117 note books of 'points,' all numbered, the Placer Herald remarks that a
